

Cooking lesson

Cooking & Lunch at Lexy Mizzi's Home

In the morning, the guests will be transferred to the rural Village of Dingli where they will find Lexy's 400 year old Home. Lexy Mizzi's House is a private house (not open to people usually). Lexy comes from a family of renowned local chefs and loves to cook and pass on her passion for this skill. She grows many of her own vegetables (or relies on her next-door neighbour farmers to give her the freshest produce), makes her own olive oil and honey too.

During this activity, Lexy will teach 8 guests (maximum number for a cooking lesson) how to cook a typical Maltese Starter, main course and dessert – menus vary according to the season and the produce available. Once the lesson is learnt, and lunch is cooked, the guests will enjoy their food in Lexy's magnificent gardens overlooking the valley, accompanied by local wine.

This is a wonderful, yet informal, experience – simply being in the comfort of her home and taking a walk around her gardens to discover Maltese agriculture is an insight not just into Maltese Food but Maltese living as well.

After lunch, should the guests wish, it will be possible to take a walk right up to the famous Dingli Cliffs – just 15 – 20 minutes away from Lexy's home.

It is also possible to just have lunch at Lexy's – this experience is available for up to 30 guests.

