Wellness Resorts

When you're in need of a true mind-body recharge, the best fix is to get off the grid and hit the reset button through a dedicated wellness getaway.

For years, the Western U.S. ruled as the country's premier wellness region. We chalk it up to the awe-inspiring landscapes found in these locales — from the sunbaked swaths of desert to the beautiful red stoned lined canyons.

Here are some of our favorite wellness resorts with plenty of outdoor activities like hiking, mountain biking, star gazing, jeep tours, yoga classes, horseback riding in unforgettable, one of a kind destinations.

Canyon Ranch Arizona

Founded in 1979 as a pioneering luxury resort, they redefined health by unifying mind, body and spirit. Through four decades of innovation, Canyon Ranch has gone beyond destination resorts and evolved into destination you. Always remaining true to the groundbreaking, yet simple, philosophy it was founded on: complete wellness for everyone they meet.

Amangiri Resort Utah

Clay in the morning light, apricot by midday, dazzling pink at dusk, the geology of the Grand Staircase-Escalante couldn't be more dramatic. In the last remnant of the truly wild West, this 'mountain of peace' is cradled by the greatest concentration of national parks in the United States – a staggering landscape of canyons, mesas, mountains, gorges, rapids and desert, with traces of human life dating back more than 10,000 years.

Gateway Canyons Resort Colorado

Gateway Canyons, nestled in the Palisades of stunning Western Colorado. This is where the planet opens up to tell its story, inviting you to discover more. Here, you can create your perfect day. Scale the red rock peaks. Go horseback riding on hoof-built trails. Unearth dinosaur bones. Pamper yourself in the spa. Dine under a chandelier of brilliant stars.
